

David Mosley

Having grown up on the west side of Chicago, David is very committed to finding ways to give back, and appreciates opportunities to be a resource that makes the community a better and safer place for youth. He has worked in many different roles serving youth, including but not limited to, as a North Lawndale Reads summer school leader as well as a yearlong teachers' assistant position for City Year. His strong work ethic and commitment to children is very evident in all he does. David is working to strengthen his research and data collecting skills in order to help families thrive. He enjoys being on the research and administrative side of programs he has experienced from the programmatic side, and is excited to contribute in this way. After completing two years at Tennessee State University, David is now completing his physical therapy assistant degree at Malcom X College in Chicago.
