

Kim Tyler

Having spent a number of years in the corporate sector working for major organizations in their accounting, finance and operational divisions, Kim Tyler is currently the Assistant Vice President of Finance and Analytics for the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Kim received her undergraduate accounting degree from the University of Illinois and has an MBA from Northwestern University. In addition, Kim has earned her CPA license and is a licensed Real Estate Broker in the state of Illinois. Kim has worked in all aspects of accounting and financial management. She understands how to manage finances for an organization, analyze financial statements in order to make critical business decisions, manage cash flow, banking relationships, & loan covenants, report to board level executives, and lead merger/acquisition activities in the non-profit space. Kim has also been responsible for operations having directed facilities management, transportation, housekeeping, security, information technology and food service departments; even serving as the interim IT Director for a non-profit that services individuals with disabilities. Kim has also closed residential and corporate real estate transactions since becoming licensed in 2006. Kim is actively involved in community organizations having held board level roles for several organizations in the area. In addition, Kim is a native Chicagoan having received her formative education within the Chicago Public School system, as well as undergraduate and graduate degrees at the University of Illinois (Urbana) and Northwestern University, respectively.